Introduction

San Diego NWR

San Diego National Wildlife Refuge was established in 1996 to protect threatened and endangered species including birds such as Coastal California Gnatcatcher, Least Bell's Vireo, and Southwestern Willow Flycatcher. The refuge and other nearby conserved lands include large expanses of coastal sage scrub that support important populations of birds dependent on this habitat type, such as Bell's Sage Sparrow, Coastal Cactus Wren, and Rufous-crowned Sparrow. The chaparral, riparian, oak woodlands, and grasslands on the refuge provide habitat for regionally sensitive species such as Golden Eagle, Burrowing Owl, Loggerhead Shrike, and Grasshopper Sparrow, as well as numerous other resident and migratory birds. In recognition of its importance to the conservation of the bird community unique to native habitats of the coastal slope of southern California, San Diego National Wildlife Refuge was designated as a Globally Important Bird Area by the American Bird Conservancy and the National Audubon Society. Wildlife observation, photography, and hiking are some of the activities that visitors can enjoy at this refuge. Please call the refuge office at (619) 468-9245 ext. 226 for more information, hours, and directions.

Bird List Key

Occurrence

- c - Common -species seen on nearly every visit at the proper season, usually in good numbers. (>10 per day)
- u - Uncommon -present, but not certain to be seen. (<10 per day)
- o - Occasional -species not seen on most visits, even at the proper season, but small numbers can be expected nearly every year with repeated searching.
- r - Rare -species seen only sporadically, not annually on Refuge.

The current breeding status of many species is uncertain, requiring ongoing surveys.

Seasons

- Sp - Spring, March through May
